SHERRONNA BISHOP

"They used a battering ram to bash down my door, they cuffed me, and then proceeded to search and go through my whole home," said Sherronna Bishop during a recent interview with journalist Brannon Howse.

Bishop claims an agent "manhandled" her daughter, leading the teen through their Grand Junction, Colorado, home by her hooded sweatshirt.

"Colorado was able to flip nine school boards this year. We were able to get one of our leftists to resign and we also flipped our school board in the election," Bishop said. "And people like me are considered domestic terrorists now, because we don't stand for the policies that have been forced upon our children."

PETERS AND BISHOP

Earlier this year, Peters and Bishop appeared on the Truth & Liberty livecast to detail their work in defending election integrity. Peters is under fire for preserving election records prior to a scheduled "upgrade" of Dominion voting machine software ordered by the Colorado Secretary of State office.

A forensic examination of Mesa County's machines after the upgrade revealed that approximately 29,000 important files, including critical election records, were erased. Peters claims the removal of files violates state and federal law and would inhibit any investigations into the results of the contested 2020 presidential election.

NOVEMBER 16, FBI RAIDS

The raids shine light on the perceived politicization of the FBI. Recent actions involving the observation of concerned parents at school board meetings at the request of the National School Board Association along with raids of whistleblowing journalists from Project Veritas, have raised questions about the impartiality of federal law enforcement.

INSPECTOR GENERAL MICHAEL E. HOROWITZ

Inspector General Michael E. Horowitz said such incidents have “negatively impacted the perception of the department as a fair administrator of justice.”
